Coaching for School Leaders

A special programme for Headteachers in Kent Schools delivered by Kent Coaching and Mentoring.

“There is strong evidence that coaching promotes learning and builds capacity for change in schools....

whilst it takes many forms, coaching is principally a joint enterprise in which one person supports another to develop their understanding and practice in an area defined by their own needs and interests...coaching is about bringing out the best in people”

(Leading Coaching in Schools, NCSL, 2005)

WHAT DO OUR CLIENTS SAY ABOUT US?

"I found the coaching sessions very helpful. They provided a stimulus for developing more effective ways of working and helped in clarifying my thinking about my current working practices and the ways in which I want, or need, to develop. Discussions were thought provoking and led me to examine and review routines and working habits, which had become inefficient or disorganised. Undertaking a series of sessions meant that there were opportunities to follow through on ideas and gave an incentive to try out plans between sessions. I feel that I am working more productively now and am establishing more productive and sustainable ways of working."
